On that dear face, or e'er you sing, Too fond I'm dwelling; To heaven a sudden song you fling, Swelling, swelling.

The fluttered melody you pour Around me ,closes, I'm stified by the soft sweet shower Of roses, roses.

When to the cruel gods you throw passionate pleading, cadence, sets my heart aflow, Bleeding, bleeding.

But when you lull that pain to rest, The low tones sighing, Ah, then the life falls in my breast, Dying, dying.

Successful Entertainment.

A fine programme, a large audience and a propitious evening, combined to make the entertainment in the associa tion building at the Reservoir on Monday night a signal success.

It was given by the Woman's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. of the Virginia Passenger and Power Company, the first orgenger and Power Company, the first or-ganization of its kind in the world.

Mrs. Garrison decorated the stage wery artistically with palms and cut flow-ers. General Manager S. W. Huff intro-duced Rev. James Buchanan, who opened the evening with an earnest prayer for the work of the Y. M. C. A. and its aux-

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

Whatever your occupation may be, and however crowded your hours with affairs, do not fail to secure at least a few minutes every day for refreshment of your inner life with a bit of poetry.—Professor Charles Eliot Norton.

The Cruel Mistress.

By THOMAS CAREW.

Thomas Carew, Server in Ordinary to Charles I., was born about 1889, and died 1833. His poems were not published until 1840.

Noel—Payne.

Mr. William Ernest Noel, of Farmville, and Miss Josephine Alberta Payne, of Forest Hill, were married on Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother.

The Rev. Dr. E. V. Baldy performed the ceremony. The marriage was quiet, only the immediate family of the bride and groom being present.

Miss Anna Kathleen Payne, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The wedding march was beautifully rendered by Mrs. H. C. Williams.

Mrs. Noel is the daughter of Mrs. Anna Winston Payne and the late T. L. Payne. Mr. Noel is a popular young business man of Farmville.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel left immediately after the ceremony for Farmville, to be present at the marriage of the groom's brother, which takes place to-day.

honored as to run a course with him. But hark, Sir John, what is amiss with the prince?"

Whilst Chandos had been conversing with the two knights a continuous stream of suitors had been ushered in, adventurers seeking to sell their swords and merchants clamoring over some grievance, a ship detained for the carriage of troops, or a tun of sweet wine which had the bottom knocked out by a troop of thirty archers. A few words from the prince disposed of each case, and, if the applicant liked not the judgment, a quick glance from the prince's dark eyes sent him to the door with the grievance all gone out of him. The younger ruler had sat listlessly upon his stool with the two pupper monarchs enthroned behind him, but of a sudden a dark shadow passed over his face, and he sprang to his feet in one of these guarts of passion which were the single ble upon his noble case will go to the State Supreme Court.

John, I commend this worthy knight to your care, You will see that he hath refection, and such a purse of gold as may defray his charges, for indeed it is great honor to any court to have within it so noble and gentle a cavaller. How say you, sire?" he asked, turning to the Spanish refugee, while the herald of Navarre was conducted from the chamber by the old warrior. "It is not our custom in Spain to reward pertness in a messenger," Don Pedro answered, patting the head of his greyhound. "Yet we have all heard the "Conditions! Hostages! Is he speaking to the Prince of England, or is it to the bourgeois provoat of some half captured town? Conditions, quotha? He may find much to mend in his own condition ere long. The passes are, then, closed to us?"

"Nay, sire."

"They are open, then?"

"Nay, sire. If you would but."

"Enough, enough, Don Martin," cried the prince. "It is a sorry sight to see so true a knight pleading in so false a cause. We know the doings of our Cousin Charles. We know that while with the right hand he takes our fifty thousand crowns for the holding of the passes open he hath his left outstretched to Henry of Trasamare, or to the King of France, all ready to take as many more for the keeping them closed. I know our good Charles, and, by my blessed name-saint the Confessor, he shall learn that I know him. He sets his kingdom up to the best bidder, like some scullon farrier selling a glandered horse. "Nay, nay, as brothers to a brother," cried the prince, with sparkling eyes. "We doubt not, with the help of God, to see you very soon restored to tadso thrones from which you have been so traitorously thrust."

"When that happy day comes," said Pedro, "then Spain shall be to you as Aquitaine, and, be your project what it may, you may ever count on every troop and every ship over which files the banner of Castile."

"And," added the other, "upon every ald which the wealth and power of Majorca can bestow."

"All here is indeed a mirror of chivalry," said Don Pedro. "I think, Sir Fernando, since the prince's bounty is stretched so far, that we may make further use of his gracious goodness to the extent of fifty thousand crowns. Good Sir William Feiton, here, will countries settle the matter with you."

"Nay, nay, my sweet cousin," cried Don Pedro. "Had we known that your coffers were so low, or that this sorry sum could have weighed one way or the other, we had been loth indeed—"
"Phough, sire, enough!" said the prince, flushing with vexation. "If the public funds be, indeed, so backward. Sir William, there is still. I trust, my own private credit, which hat never been drawn upon for my own uses; but is now ready in the cause of a friend in adversity.
